Call for Papers

China aktuell is an internationally refereed academic journal published by the Institute of Asian Affairs, Hamburg that focuses on current developments in Greater China. The bimonthly journal has a circulation of 1,200 copies, making it one of the world's most widely distributed periodicals on Asian affairs. China aktuell reaches a broad readership in the academia, administration and business circles. Articles to be published should be written in German or English and submitted exclusively to this publication.

China aktuell is devoted to the transfer of scholarly insights to a wide audience. The topics covered should therefore not only be orientated towards specialists in Chinese affairs, but should also be of relevance to readers with a practical interest in the region.

The editors welcome contributions on contemporary China including Hong Kong, Macau and Taiwan that are concerned with the fields of international relations, politics, economics, society, education, environment or law. Articles should be theoretically grounded, empirically sound and reflect the state of the art in contemporary Chinese studies.

All manuscripts will be peer-reviewed for acceptance. The editors respond within three months.

Research articles should not exceed 10,000 words (incl. footnotes and references). Manuscripts should be submitted to the editors in electronic form (stylesheet: www.duei.de/ifa/stylesheet).

Recent articles:
- Identity Work on the Chinese Internet (in German)
- Culture, Economic Style and the Nature of the Chinese Economic System
- Cross-Strait Relations since 1949: From Radicalism to Conservatism and Back Again

Newly Appointed Leaders

Cai Wu
Appointed director of the State Council Information Office. (XNA, 25 Aug 05)
Cai Wu, former deputy director of the CCP CC International Liaison Department (see C.a., 1997/11, p.1146/22), was recently appointed director of the International Communication Office of the CCP CC and director of the Information Office of the State Council, and appeared formally today to assume his new post. The former director, 65-year old Zhao Qizheng, has reached the age limit for leaders at minister level, and was transferred early this year to become vice-chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Chinese People's Political Consultative Conference (CPPCC) National Committee. ... It is learned that Cai Wu today took part in this morning's internal meeting of the State Council Information Office in his new capacity. Since the State Council Information Office and the Central International Communication Office are "two outfits manned by the same group of people", Cai Wu has therefore at the same time become director of the Central International Communication Office. While serving as deputy director of the Central Liaison Department, Cai Wu was involved in party diplomacy on behalf of the CCP for many years, and has travelled to every corner of the world. Analysts here pointed out that this arrangement by the central authorities is aimed at exerting the advantage of Cai Wu's 20-year experience in diplomacy and at explaining China to the world. At the same time, Cai Wu has rich experience in propaganda work, and has been interviewed many times by Chinese and foreign media to introduce the functions and to unmask the secret veil of the Central Liaison Department. The International Conference of Asian Political Parties was held in Beijing for the first time last year, and Cai Wu's performance as spokesman has left a rather deep impression on the people. ... Cai Wu is the same age as New China, and was born in October 1949. He comes from the northwestern province of Gansu. After the Cultural Revolution ended, the university entrance examination was restored, and he was admitted to the International Politics Department of Beijing University after scoring outstanding results, staying on to teach after graduation. In July 1983, he began his 12-year working career at the CYL [Communist Youth League] Central Committee and served as director of the International Liaison Department of the CYL Central Committee as well as Standing Committee member of the CYL Central Committee. In 1995, Cai Wu was transferred to become head of the Research Office of the Central Liaison Department, and two years later, he was promoted to deputy director of the department. He was only 48 years old that year. Cai Wu is regarded as a typical scholarly type of senior official of the CCP, and has a doctor of law degree from Beijing University. At present, he is concurrently a supervisor of doctoral students at the School of International Studies in the Renmin University of China, and his main field of research includes political party diplomacy and political parties of the world. (Wen Wei Po website, Hong Kong, 17 Aug 05, in BBC PF, 18 Aug 05)
Cai Wu, born in October 1949, is a native of Wudu County, Gansu Province. In January 1973, he joined the CCP. He worked in a production team in Gaqtai County, Gansu Province (November 1968), in the Shandan Coal Mine in Gansu (February 1971), studied at the Department of International Politics at Beijing University and later became a teacher. After July 1983, he served as director of the CYL Central International Liaison Department, member and Standing Committee member of the CYL CC, member, Standing Committee member and deputy secretary-general of the All-China Youth Federation. In March 1995, he became director of the Research Office of the Central Liaison Department, in July 1995 deputy secretary-general of the Central Liaison Department (concurrently director of its Research Office), and in July 1997 deputy director of the Central Liaison Department. (www.xinhuanet.com, 25 Aug 05, visited on 29 Aug 05) Cai is a member of the 10th CPPCC National Committee.

China’s top legislature ratified the WHO Framework Convention on Tobacco Control on 28 August, making the treaty a nation-wide regulation for banning tobacco vending machines. (RMRB, 29 Aug 05) The Standing Committee of the 10th NPC approved the appeal for passing the treaty the Chinese government signed in 2003. The NPC Standing Committee supported the treaty by announcing that China will ban tobacco vending machines of any kind on the territorial area of the PRC, including Hong Kong and Macao SARs. According to the treaty, the world’s first legal instrument designed to reduce tobacco-related deaths and diseases, all tobacco vendors should place a clear and prominent indicator inside their points of sale about the prohibition of tobacco sales to minors, in case of doubt, request buyer to provide appropriate evidence of full legal age. Similar regulations were enacted in China in 1999 to prohibit tobacco sales to minors. The treaty also ban tobacco advertising, promotion and sponsorship on radio, television, print media and internet within five years and prohibit tobacco sponsorship of international events and activities. A recent random survey conducted by State Tobacco Monopoly Administration among 220,000 people in 183 cities shows that there are more than 300 million smokers in China, 5 million among them are minors. According to the Chinese Association on Smoking Control, about 1.2 million people die of tobacco-related diseases each year in China, one fourth of the total figure of the world. China sold 1797.95bn cigarettes in 2003, making it the world’s largest cigarette market.

Chinese Foreign Minister Li Zhaoxing on 14 September joined world leaders in signing an international treaty under which defines as a crime the possession of radioactive material with the intention of committing a terrorist act. The Convention for the Suppression of Acts of Nuclear Terrorism was the 13th anti-terrorism international treaty and the first completed since the 11 September terrorist attacks on the United States. The accord, adopted by the UN General Assembly in April, will enter into force after 22 states ratify it. Under the treaty, it is illegal to possess radioactive material or a nuclear device for the purpose of causing death or substantial damage to property or environment. It is also punishable to threaten to use radioactive material or attempt to obtain such lethal material. After Li signed the treaty at a desk in a makeshift hall on the sidelines of the UN summit, Chinese UN Ambassador Wang Guangya told reporters that China's signing of the treaty indicates the country's determination to combat terrorism and its support for the UN's leading role in the global fight against terrorism. Other leaders who signed the document Wednesday included Russian President Vladimir Putin, US President George W. Bush, French Prime Minister Dominique de Villepin and Canadian Prime Minister Paul Martin. (XNA, 15 Sep 05; RMRB 16 Sep 05)

Regulation on Narcotic and Psychotropic Drugs, adopted at the 100th State Council's executive meeting on 26 July 2005. The Regulation will take effect on 1 November, 2005. (Decree No. 442 of the PRC State Council, signed by Wen Jiabao, Premier of the State Council, on 3 August 2005) The Regulation consists of nine chapters with 89 articles. (Full text: RMRB, 27 Aug 05)

The regulation aims to beef up control over narcotic and psychotropic drugs, ensure the legal, safe and appropriate usage of narcotic and psychotropic drugs and curb them from illegal distribution channels. ... the regulation covers planting, laboratory research, production, distribution, usage, storage, transportation, registration and supervision of narcotic and psychotropic drugs, and legal penalties of violation. According to the regulation, the state bans any social unit or individual from planting, laboratory research, production, distribution, usage, storage and transportation of narcotic and psychotropic drugs. The State Administration on Drug Supervision will set annual production plans of narcotic and psychotropic drugs, and the state agricultural administration will set annual planting plans in compliance with the production plans. Those enterprises allowed to produce and enter the new regulation still, as always, must report to the relevant local and state departments on a regular basis. According to the law, the penalty of detention does not apply to an offender under age 18 for the first offence against public order. (XNA, 28 Aug 05)

Law on Public Order Management and Penalties of the People's Republic of China, adopted at the 17th session of the 10th NPC Standing Committee on 28 August. This law will take effect as of 1 March 2006. (Presidential Decree No. 39, signed by State President Hu Jintao on 28 August 2005) (Full text of the decision: RMRB, 29 Aug 05) This law consists of 119 articles.

The NPC Standing Committee passed a law on penalties for offences against public order on 28 August, which cover streetwalkers, pimps and football hooligans for the first time. The law is to replace a set of regulations of the same nature promulgated 25 years ago. "The phenomenon of streetwalkers or pimps soliciting customers for prostitution in public places, especially the streets, has become a serious problem. Relevant people deserve to be punished as the phenomenon has gravely eroded social values and affected public order," said Yang Jingyu, chairman of the Law Committee of the NPC Standing Committee. There was no provision on this specific issue in the previous regulations. According to the law, a person will be detained for a period less than five days or fined a sum below 500 RMBY (approximately 61.65 US$) if he or she is found of finding customers for prostitution in public places. The 119-article law, a guide on issuing penal laws, and a few others in the previous regulations to conform with the law. And gender equality was designated as one of the country's basic national policies, according to the amended law. (XNA, 28 Aug 05)

China's legislature on 28 August passed amendments to the law on women's rights protection, which prohibits sexual harassment of women and empowers women to "lodge complaints" to relevant organizations. "This is the first time the issue of sexual harassment has been written into Chinese law," said Wu Changzhen, professor at the China University of Political Science and Law. "It provides the legal basis for handling such issues." For a long time, "sexual harassment" has been regarded as a moral issue rather than a legal one in China. Of the nearly 10 sexual harassment cases that entered legal proceedings since 2001, only one plaintiff wins. In a survey of more than 8,000 Chinese people, jointly conducted by two major media organizations Sina and Fortnight, 78 per cent of the men said they had never experienced sexual harass-
Law for Protection of Women's Rights and Interests of the People's Republic of China, adopted at the 5th session of the 7th NPC on 3 April 1992 and amended according to the "Decision of the NPC Standing Committee on revising the 'Law for Protection of Women's Rights and Interests of the PRC'" at the 17th session of the 10th NPC Standing Committee on 28 August 2005. (Full text of the law: RMRB, 14 Sep 05) The law consists of 9 chapters with 61 articles.

Special Provisions of the State Council on Preventing Production Safety Accidents at Coal Mines, adopted at the State Council's 104th executive meeting on 31 August 2005. The Provisions will go into effect on the day of promulgation. (Decree No. 446 of the PRC State Council, signed by Wen Jiabao, Premier of the State Council, on 3 September 2005) The provisions consist of 28 articles. (Full text: RMRB, 6 Sep 05)

China has issued a set of regulations on the safety of radioactive isotope and radiation devices, which require immediate and accurate report of any radiation-related accidents. The people who are responsible for the accidents will face administrative punishment or be brought to court, according to the regulations, which take effect on 1 December this year. According to the rules, a radiation-related accident shall be identified when a radioactive source is lost, stolen or out of control, or people sustain abnormal irradiation by accident when a radioactive isotope and radiation device goes out of control. When such an accident takes place, all the units engaged in the production, sales and use of radioactive isotope and radiation devices shall take immediate measures according to their emergency plan and report the accident to the local environmental protection, public security and health departments without delay. These departments, upon receiving the report, shall immediately send people to the scene for on-the-spot investigations and measures to control the effect of the accident, while at the same time reporting it to the local government and their immediate higher authorities. Major accident of this kind shall be reported to the State Council within four hours, according to the regulations. Any people who are found to act slowly in making the report, hide the truth, make false report or fail to report shall also be given administrative punishment or be punished by law. (XNA, 4 Oct 05)

Hu Jintao, chairman of the Central Military Commission, signed an order the other day to promulgate the newly revised Regulations on the Handling of Official Documents of People's Liberation Army Organs, which is to enter into force Army-wide as from 1 January 2006. The new regulations are set to lend a positive impetus to the handling of official documents of our army organs and to the enhancement of the regularization of the organs at all levels up and down the army. The new regulations are in nine chapters, containing 48 articles. The nine chapters are: General Provisions, Types of Official Documents, Formats of Official Documents, Stylistic Guidelines, Handling of Outgoing Documents, Handling of Incoming Documents, Filing and Archiving of Official Documents, Management of Official Documents, and Supplementary Provisions. ...
